President's Message

What a fantastic summer we all have had! Our latest publication, Images of America: Woodinville, was released in late June. The book represents the Society's dedication to preserving Woodinville's past. Jim & Gloria Kraft, Terri Malinowski, Kevin Stadler, Phyllis Keller, Suzi Freeman, and Judy Moore worked diligently in restoring, researching, writing, and editing over 200 photos and captions.

About the same time, the volunteer group of E Clampus Vitus built a beautiful new deck in the backyard of the DeYoung House, spearheaded by Judy Moore and Phyllis Keller. We now have a spacious area for gatherings and events. The fund-raiser to pay for the decking materials was successful beyond our wildest dreams. A heartfelt thank you goes out to all who contributed a total of nearly $8,000. The new deck plus the front garden were perfect for our annual Ice Cream Social in July. Those attending enjoyed sundaes scooped by Merwin Cederblom and hot dogs grilled by yours truly.

A few days later, we officially released Images of America: Woodinville at Chateau Ste. Michelle. Many thanks to the winery folks for providing the historic Manor House and exceptional service from the friendly staff. There was a steady stream of members and visitors.

Just because the days are getting shorter doesn't mean the Heritage Society is slowing down. Look for our booth at the "Celebrate Woodinville" Festival on Saturday, Aug. 15. We will be selling books and homemade pies! And watch for our monthly programs coming this fall. Our newest board member, Deanna Arnold-Frady, has produced an exciting lineup, and I hope you find these programs interesting. Last, but not least, the Heritage Society will celebrate its 40th anniversary with a gala dinner at the Hollywood Schoolhouse on Sunday, Oct. 18. Mark your calendar because tickets go on sale in late August!

See the Slough in September

The Sammamish River represents nearly 150 years of history in Woodinville. The stream's checkered past and current use will be highlighted by speaker Jim Benson on Wednesday, Sept. 16, at 6:30 pm.

The Woodinville Heritage Museum will offer this program at the Brightwater Center, 22505 State Route 9 SE, Woodinville.

Benson, a 1962 graduate of Bothell High School now living in Arizona, is authoring a book, Taming of the Slough, scheduled for publication in 2016. His video and remarks will lean on his family's hydro-racing experiences as well as research into Native American and pioneer use of the waterway for passenger boats and logging before it was dredged in the late 1960s and became a recreational outlet.

--Terri Malinowski

The Heritage Society has been proud to partner with the Sammamish Valley Alliance throughout the summer.
To help celebrate their Fall Harvest Celebration, the Heritage Museum will host a special opening to the public on Sunday, Sept. 27, from 1 to 4 pm.

Woodinville Roads: Part 3

Woodinville was still rural 40 years ago in 1975. Motorists could encounter horses and their riders on the back roads.

Many roads were still graveled but were coated annually with oil by the county to keep dust down. Although house and street numbers had been assigned in the 1960s, a number of routes were still known by their early-day names rather than numbers. The names often were related to the original residents who had lived on those quiet, tree-lined roads.

Burns Road- West Burns Road is now 168th Avenue NE leading to Leota JH and Wellington Elementary; when it turned east along NE 195th and then south to the Woodinville-Duvall Road again, it became East Burns Road (now 176th Avenue NE).

Montague Road- The Montague family lived just off NE 190th Street above the Woodinville-Snohomish Road. People often said, "Go up the Montague Road." Today, 190th winds uphill past Waste Management and is about half the length it was. The upper section is now called NE North Woodinville Way.

Waage Road- Before SR 522 and the Dairy Queen ramps ever existed, Waage Road connected downtown Woodinville and the Snohomish County line; beginning at NE 175th Street, passing under the train trestle, winding north along what is today 132nd Avenue NE, and passing by Woodin Elementary, which was built in 1970.

Denny Road was named for a member of Seattle's pioneer Denny family and preceded today's NE 171st Street which travels uphill from the South Bypass, past the Woodinville Heritage Museum.

Van Brocklin Road- The name spanned the road that began at the four-way Hollywood Hill School intersection and wound up hill until it straightened to become 158th Avenue NE on top of the hill. The Van Brocklin family lived east of its namesake, on a road that veered off toward Cottage Lake.

Stimson Road was named for the Fred Stimson family, which owned Hollywood Farm now Chateau Ste. Michelle. The road ran from today's winery entrance eastward along today's NE 146th Place past Hollywood Schoolhouse and up the hill to the entrance of Achsah Stimson Moore's home across from today's home area of The Farm.

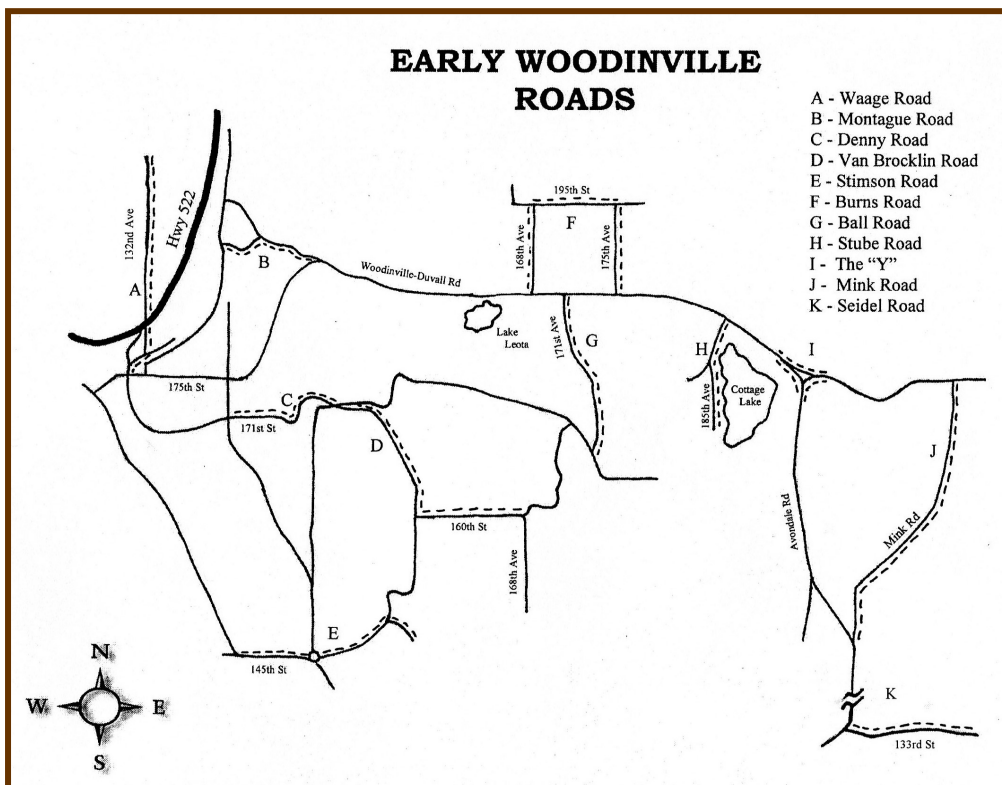

Ball Road- (also called Du Rocher Road on a 1966 Thomas Bros. Map). There is no history of the Du Rocher name; however, there was a Ball family on this road, now 171st Avenue NE and intersecting with the Woodinville-Duvall Road near the water district office.

Stube Road- The access road for people living on the north side of Cottage Lake is now 185th Avenue NE and was named for the Stube family (pronounced Stoo-bee).

The Y Intersection- Prior to the four-way intersection at Avondale Road and Woodinville-Duvall Road, motorists coming north from Redmond turned west on the left fork of the Y toward Woodinville or east at the Y if they were Duvall-bound. You can still see part of the road behind the A-frame building there.

Seidel Road - named for the Seidel family, was east of the Avondale Road and ran along what is today NE 131st Street.

Mink Road hosted a large mink farm, whose precise location along the road today is not known. Today's street number is 206th Avenue NE.

Sammamish Valley Pioneer Picnic: July 19

The Society was invited to participate in the picnic by Tom Ormbrek. The Ormbrek family members sang and entertained the crowd. The photo boards we displayed generated a lot of interest, family memories, and discussions!

Book Launch: July 14th

The Woodinville Heritage Society officially launched its latest publication, Woodinville: Images of America, at the Manor House of Chateau Ste. Michelle on July 14. The event was held in conjunction with the winery's "Chateau Tuesdays," where live music is featured in a park-like setting.

WOW! What a great night! It was truly special to see some of you there along with some of our members but most especially, the walk-ins from the Chateau concert. I am so proud of the work that the Book Team put into this "most excellent" publication. A few people told me, "You [the Heritage Society] are really making an impact on our community." Apparently we really are making our Vision a reality!! Thanks, also, to Lucy, Jim, & Kevin for carting over the displays, setting up, and cleaning up.
